Dear Alessia,

Thank you for providing additional details to your queries.

In response we provide the following statement. Grateful if it can be used in full:

“The production assets of Portovesme S.r.l., in operation since the early 1970s, were acquired by Glencore in July 1999 from the ENI Group. Portovesme S.r.l. operates within the National Interest Remediation Site (SIN) of Sulcis Iglesiente Guspinese, an area designated by the Ministry of the Environment (MASE) for the environmental remediation activities under its competence.

Since 2015, Portovesme S.r.l. has been implementing an Operational Safety Management plan (MISO), approved by MASE, which includes a series of targeted actions aimed at the remediation of soil and groundwater within the boundaries of its production sites.

In parallel, Portovesme S.r.l. is preparing to join a multi-company joint venture, initiated by the national authorities, together with other companies including Alcoa and Fintecna. This involves the establishment of a dedicated consortium company which will focus on underground water remediation of the main industrial hub of Sulcis. This initiative aims to streamline and consolidate the efforts currently undertaken by the participating companies.”

Kind regards,

Charles
